So much for the parathyroids!

Thirdly, common sense plays its part in another field of endocrinology—that of lecturing. Though it is intelligence which frames the body of a talk, it is common sense which dictates that one sit down when he has nothing more to say.

possibility of cure by conservative methods. Many patients in this series could not have withstood radical surgery so at best the only thing to be expected was palliation.

It would seem that accurate and thorough transurethral resection followed by radon seed implantation in the infiltrating types of tumors may have something to offer where the tumor has not already extended locally.

The low morbidity and mortality rate plus the preserving of the urinary bladder makes endovesical surgery for bladder cancer more enticing.
